

Dear Sir,

Amount of £2000

We have seen in your letter your letter of the 6th instant & the feels that the offer therein contained is manifestly ~~stupidly~~ ^{unwisely} the least it can be to certainly be expected to be taken.

~~Amount of £2000~~ ^{the calculation.}

It is a purpose of ours to the amount of £24000 not £2000 the is of opinion that your surveyor cannot have fully ascertained the premises or that you have been so deficient in ascertaining the purpose proposition. So far as he can ascertain it does not appear that any further recovery of the debt of the premises, but that by any means as a condition made that the same is not recoverable any more can be found of the value of the property - the property

the amount of the property in fact the value of the property

the amount of the property

the amount of the property, as a condition, is not recoverable

the amount of the property, as a condition, is not recoverable

the amount of the property